This publication revises population projections published in January, 1983 by the Department of Planning and Budget. Projections by five-year intervals through the year 2000 are presented for counties, cities, and planning districts. Age, race and sex projections are presented for counties and cities for years 1990 and 2000.

Introduction

This publication contains population projections for Virginia and the state's counties and cities for the years 1990-2000.They replace projections reported in Virginia Population Projections 2000, published in January, 1983. The projections are presented by five year increments, and county and city figures for 1990 and 2000 are shown by age, race, and sex.

Highlights

The projections indicate that Virginia's future will be strongly influenced by the following trends:

Population Growth

Virginia's population is projected to reach 6,096,700 by 1990. This represents a growth of 749,882, or 14.0 percent, over the 1980 population. Virginia's average annual growth rate is 1.3 percent for the 1980's, considerably above the 1.0 percent rate projected for the nation.

A slower pattern of growth is projected for the 1990's. The state's population for the year 2000 is expected to be 6,664,600. This is an absolute growth of 567,900 persons, or a 9.3 percent increase over the 1990 projection.

Projections for counties and independent cities indicate that 39 localities, or 28.7 percent of the state's 136 localities, are expected to exceed Virginia's rate of growth for the 1980-1990 period. Of the remaining 97 localities, 83 will have growth rates below the state average while 14 are projected to lose population. Between 1990 and 2000, 44 localities will equal or exceed the state's growth rate; 84 will be lower and 8 are projected to show population decline.

Age Distribution

The median age of the state's population is expected to increase significantly during the twenty-year period. In 1980 it was 29.8 years. By 2000 it should reach 36.2 years. A similar trend is projected for the nation, where median age will rise from 30.0 years in 1980 to 36.3 years by 2000.

The portion of Virginia's population in the 20 to 64 and 65 and over age groups will increase by the year 2000 while the portion in the 0 to 19 age group will decline.

The state will experience a slight decrease in school age population (5 to 19) by 2000. The state's working population (22 to 64) will increase almost one-third.

Geographic Distribution

Major population growth will be concentrated in or adjacent to metropolitan areas located primarily in the eastern third of the state and will include a number of localities within Planning Districts Eight, Sixteen, Eighteen, and Twenty. Areas of low growth will include Planning Districts Twelve,Thirteen, Nineteen, and Twenty-two. Spotsylvania County is projected to show the highest rate of growth during the next two decades, and Fairfax County will experience the greatest gain in population.

Methodology

Population projections in this publication were produced by a cohort component method of projecting demographic change. This method recognizes that population changes are a result of three factors: births, deaths, and migration. Each of these factors, or components, are projected separately and then combined to produce population projections.

Birth Rates

Age and race specific birth rates are projected for females 10 to 49 years of age in five-year age groups for the years 1985-2000. Individual county and city rates are based on a continuation of their respective 1982-1984 birth rates. Actual state white and nonwhite total fertility rates for 1982-1984 were 1.65 and 1.75, respectively.

Death Rates

Projected white and nonwhite deaths for Virginia were based on 1979-1981 state survival rates, with slight adjustments for the 65 and over population. These adjustments result from mortality rates projected by the Social Security Administration. The middle mortality assumption was chosen to reflect a decline in mortality rates. This results in an ultimate life expectancy of 81.0 years in 2080.[1] Life expectancies of the total state and national population for the 1979-81 period were 73.4 and 73.9 years, respectively.

Migration

Migration projections are based on the 1970-1980 locality age-race-sex specific rates with adjustments made for changes that took place between 1980 and 1984. These adjustments are based on intercensal population estimates produced by the Tayloe Murphy Institute (University of Virginia) in conjunction with the U.S. Bureau of the Census. Virginia's net migration between 1980 and 1990 is projected at 378,200, with migration for the 1990's expected to be 349,300.

Use of Projections

The population projections in this publication represent conditional forecasts of the future. The projections are the most probable occurances based on current information and specific fertility, mortality and migration assumptions.

The projections are not intended to be optimal growth trends or goals for any county or city; nor are they intended to constrain an area. They are meant to provide insight on what could occur in the absence of any major change. The projections should serve as common reference points in the planning, deve!opment, and implementation of state agency programs and facilities.

The migration component reflects, in part, the effects of the economic slowdown in the early 1980's. For this reason, the projections will be updated periodically to reflect recent demographic and economic changes.

Like any population projections, these projections have differing degrees of reliability. Projections for large localities are generally more reliable than those for small localities. Projections for relatively stable population areas are usually more reliable than for those areas experiencing relatively rapid growth or decline.
